

Senior Alisa Prude-Hunt earned first place the first ever Saint Saviour Christmas card contest with her drawing of “a student holding a candle”. Inspiration for the design came from the Christmas mass tradition where seniors process through the church aisles carrying glowing candles to signify the advent season. The image will be used on the Saint Saviour Christmas card which is sent to future Saviourites and friends of the school.

Faculty judged the submissions and Alisa’s design received the most votes for the first place. Second place went to “Angel (Merry Christmas)” while “Blessed Christmas” earned third place. Seven students took part in the contest which ran from November 4 – November 10. In addition, students’ submissions will also be entered into the Knights of Columbus Holiday card contest with the winner.
