

celebrate the power of girls!

WELCOME TO THE INTERNATIONAL DAY OF THE GIRL CELEBRATION!

The International Day of the Girl was established in 2011 as a day of recognition and celebration for girls worldwide. The day brings together communities across the globe in support of the full recognition of human rights for girls. Today, at the UN we celebrate #IDG2015 at the Speak Out, witnessing what happens when girls take over.

This celebration was made possible by the contributions we received from girls all around the world! Thanks to the girls from:

Australia, Canada, Cambodia, India, Kenya, Mozambique, Tanzania, & United States for sharing your amazing stories!

and a special shout out to the girls who created the pieces you saw today!

IDG Song

Hello. I am a girl
Amongst so many others
But if there are so many others
Why are we still unheard?

We got plenty of improve-ments to show
Yet there's still, so far to go Yeah there's been enough of our oppressions Enough right, transgression

<Chorus>
Cause you still Put your hands up, throw your words at us Try and tell us who we're supposed to be Oh who we're supposed to be But that's gonna change right now

Cause it's the day of the girl
We're standing up now
We're gonna fight till the end,
for our sisters and our future daughters
Yeah it's the day of the girl
We're speaking out loud, yeah we're taking over, taking,
taking over, tick-tock (3X)

Not only my sisters but my brothers suffer, cause the gender divide, don't discriminate.
Yeah it's been decades since we gained the U.S. vote
Yet still no true, equality

<Chorus>

Oh we are a sisterhood
Of beautiful people
We won't be told what to do,
What to wear
Who to be
How to live our lives
No we won't stand to be knocked around,
to the ground,
No more, no more, no more

Cause it's the day of the girl
We're standing up now
We're gonna fight till the end
for our sisters and our future daughters

Yeah it's the Day of the Girl
We're speaking out loud
Yeah we're taking over, taking over, taking over tick....tock
